This free program introduces students to careers in transportation and tech while earning three transferable college credits in Environmental Studies. Students come away understanding career opportunities in the transportation industry, such as airline pilots, bus drivers, train engineers, supply-chain managers, and many more. Students are also encouraged to pursue degrees that prepare them for transportation careers. MSTI's partnerships with local industry leaders, like Google, Mineta San Jose International Airport, VTA, and many others, makes this program a unique and valuable opportunity for those ready to make the most of it!

*On specific occasions—and with notice—students may be required to arrive earlier or may be released later due to field trip travel constraints.
